In Finland, Farpointe's Long Range Reading Solution Keeps Schneider Electric Employees Out of the Cold

Posted by SecurityWorld on October 28, 2015 8:00 pm. Categories: Access Control, Tags, Access Control System, Barcode, Security, Tag, RFID, Wiegand.

Farpointe Data, a DORNA Group Company, the access control industry's trusted global partner for RFID solutions, today announced that Schneider Electric in Espoo, Finland, is using a Ranger Wiegand long range 433 MHz receiver and Wiegand transmitters to let employees drive into their underground garage on a year-round basis without having to open their windows. To avoid temperatures as low as -31°F (-33°C) with heavy rain, snow or sleet, an employee simply presses a button on the Ranger transmitter kept in their car to raise the barrier bar and drive into the garage.
